This invention is directed to a system for the detection of concealed weapons and contraband and more particularly to a system for the detection of weapons and contraband concealed on an individual. Firearms and ammunition are among the most common and dangerous contraband items that have been employed by individuals to commit crimes. In large urban centers, there is an increased incidence of firearms and ammunition being employed in crimes, especially crimes of assault and robbery. The use of firearms and ammunition in such crimes is primarily due to the ease of accessibility and concealed nature of such contraband. Also, a rapid and efficient search for concealed firearms and ammunition is the primary goal of law enforcement officials. Currently, a number of techniques are used to detect and locate firearms, including a traditional metal detector. When a suspect is suspected of carrying contraband, a law enforcement officer will search the suspect by, for example, patting down his or her clothing. While searching the suspect, the officer may sense a metallic object which could be a firearm, such as a handgun, or a knife, such as a stiletto. Since metal detectors are able to detect some firearms and ammunition, their use has become the standard detection method employed by law enforcement officials. Nonetheless, while the accuracy of metal detectors is

Stay focused on the customer. The way you look at the problem should be different from the way you look at it at the solution. You don't need to look at a problem and immediately decide the most efficient way of solving it. Don't just walk up to the problem and say "I can fix this". At first, people have an attachment to the problem. "I can fix this problem", "I can make this better", "I can make this cheaper" 2edc1e01e8

But Nasa was already planning its own mission to the moon -- a feat that would in time become a source of national pride. By 1972, the space agency was back on track. It has sent the world's first female spacewalker, a twice-launched space station, and the first "Honeycomb", a spinning tower that beamed internet into people's homes. In the latest chapter in the 50-year history, Nasa is working on an unmanned ship called Apollo, which will land on the Moon later this year. The mission will cost $1bn and will be the first time humans will be back on the lunar surface since the 1970s.
