1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a piezoelectric device, such as a transducer using a piezoelectric thin film, and more particularly, it relates to a piezoelectric device having a structure with a stepped portion.

2. Description of the Related Art Heretofore, a piezoelectric device is used in a pressure sensor of a keyboard, an audio system, an automobile, or the like. Specifically, a piezoelectric device has been used as a sensor or an actuator which utilizes the deformation or the vibration of a diaphragm, a piston, or the like. Piezoelectric devices of this type include a piezoelectric substrate, and a diaphragm, a piezoelectric diaphragm, a pressure chamber, a pressure sensing diaphragm, and the like which are each formed integrally with the piezoelectric substrate. Thus, the entire piezoelectric device includes a diaphragm, a piezoelectric diaphragm, and a pressure chamber. Each of these portions includes a piezoelectric substrate, and a piezoelectric thin film which is adhered to the piezoelectric substrate in most cases. Piezoelectric substrates each have a step (ledge) formed as an indented part, which is used when the piezoelectric substrate is adhered with a piezoelectric substrate (a piezoelectric diaphragm) having a stepped part. In a piezoelectric device formed by adhering the piezoelectric substrate and the piezoelectric substrate, the piezoelectric substrate and the piezoelectric substrate are adhered through an adhesive layer. The length of the step is made shorter than the thickness of the adhesive layer to prevent

Instructions For Adding Text To A ProShow Producer Slide.Q: Question about the tensor product of two coherent sheaves This is a question about something which is probably rather obvious, but for which I was unable to find a quick answer. Suppose X and Y are varieties over a field k . Suppose F and G are coherent sheaves on $X \times Y$ and $H^i_p(X \times Y, F)$ and $H^i_p(X \times Y, G)$ are the associated cohomology groups.
